RICHMOND MEDAL AGAIN IN SNARL

Owing to an accident in the 220-yard hurdles at yesterday's intermountain scholastic track meet the Fred C. Richmond medal for the best all-around athlete at the local high school may again come into the limelight. The medal, which is of solid gold, is the most valuable adornment offered in the state, and curious enough its award has always been contested.

Five years ago when the Richmond medal was presented for the first time, George Atkins, the classy Red and Black trackman, was the lucky recipient. The medal awarded to him on his track work was claimed by Frank Wheeling, whose remarkable all-round record stamped him as the best husky on the west side campus.

The next year no medal was awarded, as the reason was, but Wheeling was again the strongest contender. Three years ago Roy McIntyre and Harvey Ward were the chief contenders. That year Ward made every first team in school athletics and was accorded the best all-around performer in the intermountain high school class. McIntyre was favored by the awarding committee, however, because of his scholastic standing, the committee holding that this entered into consideration. McIntyre had played on every team but did not make any count on the track squad, while Ward made points in the 220-yard hurdles.

End Comes in First Round and Physicians Say Heart Disease Is Cause.

By International News Service.
ALBANY, Alberta, May 24.--Luther McCarty, recognized world heavyweight champion pugilist of the world, was knocked out and killed by Arthur Pelky in the first round of their scheduled ten-round bout here this afternoon. A short right hook landed just below the heart staggered the champion and he fell to the canvas, dying less than thirty minutes later. The authorities placed Pelky under arrest and he is being held pending the action of the coroner's jury. According to physicians at the ring-side, death was due to heart trouble.

Skyscrapers Win One More; Triple Is Feature of Game

Roy Castleton, Pitching Superb Ball, Has Contest in Hand at All Times; Helena Has One Fatal Inning.

PLAGUE take that Great Falls bunch! Here they went and won again, just as we were about to sit on top of the heap. However, today it will be something else again. I understand me, Mawruss, and when bedtime comes tonight Salt Lake's little flag will flutter from the place right under the golden rule. Yesterday Salt Lake put it over on the Vigilantes to the tune of 5 to 3. Castleton had the game sewed up from the start. A total of only five hits was made off the Skyscraper men, only one of which in any way contributed to a run for the visitors. Even that one might not have helped unless it had been for a fielder permitted a single to go for two bases.

Hopkins Lasts Quick.

Hopkins started the pitching for Helena, but he was taken out after a brief beginning in the second. There is no telling what that first inning would have been for Hopkins had not his teammates come gloriously to his rescue with a triple play. The triple was pulled off in splendid style and was the feature of the game. There is no telling either what would have happened to Hopkins in the second had not Ames taken his place. Before Hopkins was yanked he had allowed a base on balls, a double and a single.

Rex Ames, who replaced Hopkins, pitched grand ball after the second inning. At no time were the Salt Lakers excessively dangerous. Ames' sacrifice record when he squared away after the second.

Fast Fielding.

The thrills which have filled the preceding games of the Salt Lake-Helena series were not so pronounced yesterday. But at that there was plenty of excitement. When a game can show a triple, a couple of double plays and fast fielding generally, it's a game worth seeing.

Today the final set-to between Helena and Salt Lake will be pulled off. If Helena wins, Helena must win if it wants to leave Salt Lake with anything like a clean face. Salt Lake is just as determined to win, and it needs the victory to put it at the top in that percentage column.

It may not be amiss to call attention to the fact that today's game will be pitched at 2:30, which is the weekday hour. This is highly important, because nobody can afford to miss even a minute of these days, much less half an hour of it.

Salt Lake's Scores.

Salt Lake began business right off the reel. Murphy, the first man up, got a hit. Spencer, the second, got a base on balls. Huelsman, the third, was hit by a pitch. The Skyscraper men were then on their feet. Every base runner started for the next station as soon as the ball was cracked, and they were too far away to get back when Quigley caught the ball. Quigley threw to first, retiring Davis, and Lussie threw to third, where Cronin held it on the bag, putting out Spencer, who was almost home.

Salt Lake's four runs in the second were made in this wise: Schimpff flied out to Spencer. Pendleton drew a base on balls and went to third on McClain's hit. He scored on Castleton's two-bagger. Murphy hit to Quigley, who threw to Cronin on a base hit. Crittenden dropped the ball and the big catcher was safe at home. Spencer fouled out and Huelsman drew a base on balls. Castleton and Murphy scored on Davis's single.

Helena's first run was made in the first inning. The inning started with Spencer going out. Pendleton to Dressan. Kelly hit toward left field. The hit should have been a single only, but a boot by Huelsman let Kelly go to second on it. The next man up went out, Schimpff to Dressan, and Kelly went to third on a sacrifice. The side was retired when Lussie went out. Dressan to Castleton, the pitcher covering the bag.

Two Without Hit.

The Vigilantes' two other scores were made in the eighth and that, too, without a hit. Davis missed Quigley's ground-out. Quigley went to second on a wild pitch and to third on a base hit. Davis to Dressan. Cronin hit to Schimpff, who threw wild to the plate and both Quigley and Lussie scored. The latter having advanced on the wild pitch mentioned. A double play. Pendleton to Schimpff to Dressan, retired the side. Among featuring features was a fine catch by Dressan of Pendleton's high throw in the first of Spencer's grounder. Pendleton made a beautiful catch of Menzies' line drive in the second. It was a hard chance and only after some

TRAVERS WINS HIS THIRD CHAMPIONSHIP

Golf Expert Has an Easy Victory Over Kammerer in Finals.

By International News Service.
NEW YORK, May 24.--Jerome D. Travers won the Metropolitan golf championship today for the third successive time, when he defeated A. F. Kammerer over the Fox Hills course in summery fashion. The match ended on the twenty-ninth green, with Travers 5 up and 7 to play. Mr. Travers' victory gives to the Upper Montclair club, from which Travers plays, permanent possession of the chancery trophy which has been the emblem of the Metropolitan championship since 1898.

Travers really won the match this morning, for when the first eighteen holes were over the defending champion was 5 up, and as he won by 8 up and 7 to play, the result shows that he was content to merely hold his own during the afternoon.

Other results were:
M. R. Marston of Cranford defeated E. M. Barnes.
O. P. Tiffany of Fowclton defeated P. H. Jennings of Nassau.
M. E. Sprague of Inwood defeated A. A. Harrison of New York.
The Metropolitan handicap gross prize went to F. Herreshoff of Garden City, who defeated A. F. Palmer.

Crimson Defeats the Blue.
BOSTON, May 24.--Harvard overcame Yale at tennis today, the Blue players winning only a single match each in singles and doubles. The feature match of the meet was that in which W. M. Washburn, the Harvard crack, defeated A. H. Mann, Jr., of Yale, 6-0, 8-10, 7-6.
